

VULNERABLE CONSUMER APPLICATION FORM 111 CONTACT CODE

Complete this application form if you want us to consider you (or someone you are applying on behalf of) as a vulnerable consumer under the 111 Contact Code.

The 111 Contact Code ensures that people who are more likely to need to contact 111, and who have a landline that doesn't work in an electricity outage (with no other way of contacting 111 at their house), are provided with a suitable device to contact the 111 emergency service.

To be covered by the 111 Contact Code, a person must:

- be at particular risk of requiring the 111 emergency service (either now or sometime in the near future); and
- in the event of an electricity outage, not have a way to contact the 111 emergency service at their premises that can work for a continuous 8-hour period.

Instructions for completing form.

1. Fill in Parts A, B and C of the form.
2. Complete the declaration in Part D of the form.
3. Return the completed form to Now, PO Box 3033, Hawke's Bay Mail Centre, Napier 4142.

Note:

If the application is accepted but you (or the person you are applying on behalf of) reject the suitable device (method of contacting 111) supplied to you (e.g., because you don't like the look of the device), Now can deem your application withdrawn. This means you won't be considered a vulnerable consumer and we do not need to supply a way of contacting 111. See the guidance information on page 4 for more detail.

Additional information can be found on the last page of this form. Further guidance and FAQs can be found on the Commission's website: comcom.govt.nz/regulated-industries/telecommunications/telecommunications-for-consumers/commission-111-contact-code

Additional Guidance:

What are the next steps in the application process?

Once you have completed the form, return it to Now, PO Box 3033, Hawke's Bay Mail Centre, Napier 4142. If the form is incomplete or unclear, we'll come back to you seeking clarification.

Within 10 working days of receiving a complete application, Now will inform the consumer (or the person applying on their behalf) if the application has been accepted or declined. As part of this, we'll provide an overview of the dispute resolution process available.

- If the application is accepted, Now will provide the vulnerable consumer with a suitable device as soon as reasonably practicable. If the vulnerable consumer rejects the suitable device supplied, Now can deem the application withdrawn.
- If the application is declined, Now will state the reasons for declining, including providing sufficient information to enable the consumer to understand.

What if I reject the suitable device that is given to me?

Now has to supply each vulnerable consumer with a 'suitable device' for contacting the 111 emergency service in the event of an electricity outage (e.g., a mobile phone). The suitable device must be appropriate for the specific person, taking into account physical, mental and technical abilities.

Now must also provide clear instructions and guidance on how to use the means and who to contact if there are any issues.

If a person declines the suitable device (e.g., because they don't like the look of it), then Now can deem the application 'withdrawn'. This means the person isn't considered a vulnerable consumer and won't be provided a suitable device for contacting the 111 emergency service. That person can still reapply to be a vulnerable consumer at any point.

If there is a dispute over whether the 'suitable device' is appropriate or not, the Telecommunications Dispute Resolution Scheme can be contacted to help find a resolution.

What is the Telecommunications Dispute Resolution Scheme?

The Telecommunications Dispute Resolution Scheme is a free, independent service to help consumers with complaints about their telecommunications provider. A dispute between a consumer and a telecommunications company about their rights and obligations under the 111 Contact Code can be referred to this Scheme.

For more information on the Telecommunications Dispute Resolution Scheme you can contact us at www.nownz.co.nz and we will refer to where to find more information, or you can read more about the Scheme and how to contact them on their website here: www.tdr.org.nz.

Who should I contact if I have any questions about this form?
